WAR SUMMARY OF THE LATEST EVENTS

The appearance of the German Emperor at Nish, in Southern Serbia, almost as soon as he was able to get about after his recent illness, indicates that the period of inaction in the Balkans nears an end. The visit unquestionably had to do with the terms upon which the Bulgars will continue to lend their help to the Germanic powers in their eastern campaign. Ferdinand of Bulgaria has been able hitherto to carry his people with him because in conquering southern Macedonia and annexing it to his kingdom he was "liberating" a population largely Bulgarian in race and language, which had been forcibly an-nexed by the Serbs after the second Balkan war. If Ferdinand is to secure the hearty co-operation of the Bulgarian people in further military operations he must now obtain a promise of an adequate return for the sacrifices demanded.

The price offered for Bulgarian support in an attack on Saloniki may not be known until the close of the operations, but it is reasonably safe to say that Kavala, the Greek port on the Aegean east of Saloniki, is one of the objects on which King Ferdinand has set his heart. It will be difficult to despoil neutral Greece of her territory, but compensation will doubtless be offered in Albania and in the Monastir district of Macedonia, where there is a very considerable Greek population. If the Bulgars join in the attack on the Franco-British army the price of their support will be pre-arranged. Ferdinand and the Kaiser are now dickering as to what that price shall be.

No further authentic news as to the situation in Greece has been received.

the attack on the Franco-British army the price of their support will be pre-arranged. Ferdinand and the Kaiser are now dickering as to what that price shall be.

No further authentic news as to the situation in Greece has been received, but from Italian news centres come despatches indicating a growing belief that there is a revolutionary movement afoot in the country which may endanger the throne, and that the Allies are making preparations to occupy Greek ports which might otherwise become centres for the enemy's submarines and other war vessels in Grecian waters.

In Egypt, Mesopotamia, Persia and the Caucasus the Allies are displaying great activity. The Egyptian garrison has been strengthened by a contingent of South African troops, which is to be followed by others. The Suez Canal lines are believed to be impregnable, and nothing has been heard of late regarding the army of 300,000 men which von der Goltz and Djemal Pasha were understood to be mobilizing at Damascus for the Egyptian adventure. Some Italian military experts are of opinion that the talk of an invasion of Egypt was begun to deceive Britain, and induce her to throw reinforcements into that country while the Germans and Turks made a dash across Persia in force towards India.

That seems an even more hopeless project than the invasion of Egypt, for there is not the remotest doubt that if India were seriously menaced the Japanese, under their treaty obligations, would be called in by Great Britain to aid in its defence. They could put a quarter of a million men on the northwest frontier long before the Turks and Germans could approach it by land. No army large enough to attempt the conquest of India—even with the help of all the elements of discontent in the country—could cross Persia and Afghanistan without suffering privations that would destroy its fighting strength. India and Egypt are safe. The Turk and the German can dispute the supremacy of Britain and Russia in Asia only in Mesopotamia, Persia and the Caucasus.

The British expedition advancing up the Tigris to the relief of Kut-el-Amara is still held up by bad weather but there is every prospect that it will soon achieve its object. The prospects for an early linking up of the Russian army in the Caucasus and Persia with the British army of the Tigris are excellent. After that takes place the war in Asia will be carried on in a more methodical way than has heretofore been possible.

The Russians are attacking on the Bessarabian front near Czernowitz. The persistence of the army under Gen. Ivanoff in its advance upon Czernowitz is probably due to a desire to prove to the Roumanians that the Czar's forces are again strong enough to attack.

The French artillery roars away incessantly, and from Holland come reports that the nerve of the Germans in the trenches is giving way under the interminable strain. The actual loss of life must also be great, for almost daily the French officially announce hits made on bodies of moving troops.

Private letters from Great Britain tell of preparations for moving out a considerable part of Kitchener's army to make room for the troops called up under the Derby recruiting scheme. In Scotland a new army—the Eighth—is about to go abroad, and it is estimated that Britain's share of the front in France will be materially increased very early in the spring would enable the French to strengthen their forces in the Vosges and maine for the offensive measure will undoubtedly be undertaken. Every competent observer who recently visited the region behind British lines in Flanders says that a German offensive would mean the wholesale slaughter of the assailants without any breaking through. The German doubt, believe their defensive be equally impregnable.

A despatch from Rome to the London Daily Telegraph and Times says that many Montenegrin and soldiers are refusing to leave their arms and are taking refuge in the mountains. That will greatly Austria's troubles, and prevent withdrawal of the troops now Montenegrin territory. Paris affirms that King Nicholas is taking refuge in Italy, the peace negotiations having broken down. Austria sought to impose terms harsh to be considered.

The Petrograd official report only records the complete success of the Russian offensive in the Caucasus but announces that the German forces near Friedrichstadt advanced by the use of asphyxiating gas, were repulsed by the Russian fire. In Dvinsk two German assaults were repulsed.

A communication was read from an insurance company re insurance of employees. A communication was read from the principal World soliciting sub- scription for that publication. Filed. A communication was read from Wright, Kingston, enclosing a concrete walks built in Nap- anee.

to the Streets Committee

A communication was read from the official secretary of the Salva- tion Army, Toronto, soliciting aid towards the work of the Army. to the Finance Committee

Murray made application for position of Sanitary Inspector. Finance Committee reported on aid of E. S. Lapum, $13.50, recommended the payment of $10.00 of account; on the account of $22.00, the committee recommended payment.

Mr. T. B. German addressed the council in reference to the bequest left the town from the Wright estate. A certain amount of this bequest had been used by the town for purposes other than that intended, and as executor of said estate he was of the opinion that the amount wrongfully expended should be replaced and the bequest left intact until such time as the conditions of the bequest could be complied with.

Mayor Ruttan informed Mr. Ger- man that it was the intention of the present council to restore the amount so spent from the Wright bequest.

Capt. Kane addressed the council on matters pertaining to a recruiting campaign to be carried on in the town when it is hoped to raise within fifteen days in Napanee and vicinity 200 men for the 146th Batt. He asked the co operation of the members of the council in preparing a list of every available man in Napanee in order that a quick canvas might be facilitated. He also brought before the attention of the council the urgent need for every eligible man to enlist. In concluding a stirring address he said it was no longer a question of Canada fighting for the Motherland, but the time had come when Cana- dians had to fight to protect their own country, for a win in this war for Germany would mean the Germaniz- ing of Canada, for Canada is the prize which Germany hopes to wrench from England.

A by-law was passed appointing the following as members of the Court of Revision for 1916: Mayor Ruttan, Reeve Osborne and Councillors U. M. Wilson, M. P. Graham and A. E. Paul.

A by-law was passed appointing W. S. Herrington, town solicitor for the year 1916, at a salary of $100.00.

Moved by Reeve Osborne and Coun- cillors that the Finance Committee investigate the question of the poor service rendered by the C. N. R. through the north end of the county, and report to council. Carried.

THE BOYS IN KHAKI.

C Company, hockey players, played a game of hockey with a team from the Foresters on Thursday evening. C Company players are open for games with any organization willing to play. 50 members of the Company have purchased tickets for the rink.

Sixteen citizens joined the civilian physical exercise and drill class on Monday evening.

For the past four months the officers of C Company have not had arms. The deficiency has now been filled by the purchase by the officers of 455 revolvers, and they expect to do some tall shooting.

On Friday, February 4th, C Company will give another concert with an entirely different programme from that given last Friday.

The officers and men of the Company were very pleased to see so large a crowd at their concert on Friday last.

Two recruits were received by the Company this week.

Pte. Garrett has been discharged from the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, after two months illness and is now on leave for two weeks—convalescing.

C Company have still room for 35 men—must be good ones—none other accepted.

C Company bugle band has been organized and the members are diligently practising.

The armories are being equipped with 300 c.p. Mercury lamps, which are being protected by screens so that indoor baseball may be played. New lights have been placed in front of the armories.

The concert on Friday last drew a splendid crowd, every available seat being occupied and hundreds standing. The various numbers on the programme were well rendered and appreciated. The physical drill led by quarter-master, Sgt. Mercer, was well done and received well merited applause. As usual the boxing contests were interesting. The khaki choir did very well but needs a bit more practice, the boys were not very sure of their vocal powers. Pte. Hearn did his balancing stunt very nicely. Next time we would advise the officers to provide a specially strong chair for His Worship the mayor. He wrecked the one provided for him. C Company will always be sure of a good attendance as long as they provide as attractive programmes as that of Friday last.

British Victory in Mesopotamian Region.

Immer's Relief Force Has Defeated the Turkish With Result That Relief Is Now Within Six Miles of Kut-el-Amara.

Jan. 18.—Anglo-Russians in the Far East continue progress in co-related campaign against the Turks, official to London and Petrograd victories in Mesopotamia respectively. The British in Mesopotamia, under General Townshend, advancing to the relief of Kut-el-Amara, where General Townshend's force is besieged, has been stiff battle. As a result opposing the advance, compelled to fall back after the 13th and 14th lost their positions and retreated to a point within of Kut-el-Amara.

Office announced a British Sunday also. The relief force which recently defeated the 45,000 British led up at Kut-el-Amara, drove on the Tigris, defeating the Turkish army on January 8 or the Turks had considered its progress. It then Ottoman troops to retreat towards along the river to a point on the Tigris, 25 miles below Kut-el-Amara.

ness represents a gain for force of more than 25,000. However, it places it in the neighborhood of Kut-el-Amara, the Turkish main stronghold and the British main base. If the defenders of Kut-el-Amara through a successful sortie manage to break through the lines, the Sultan's army will be into a perilous plight. On the other hand, if the relief force fails its pursuit and effects relieving the main British force the latter will be out of danger despite Turkish because of its strategical A new British drive on Kut-el-Amara would be the logical consequence of the War Office follows:

NO CONSCRIPTION.

Sir Robert Borden Pledges Himself to Voluntary System.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—War has sobered Parliament. It was a serious but confident and at times enthusiastic House which yesterday heard the two leaders voice Canada's determination to assume greater responsibilities and to make even greater sacrifices and efforts for the prosecution of the struggle to a victorious peace. Both Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier opened by declaring that the shadows of the war seemed even darker and more sombre than when Parliament had last met. Yet they concluded with a firm note of united endeavor to see the task through, cost what it might.

Sir Robert Borden in his speech accepted Sir Wilfrid's suggestion that he set at rest the feeling of uneasiness in many parts of the country that the voluntary system of enlistment which has worked so well in Canada would be abandoned for conscription. Sir Robert gave the pledge that there was no thought of conscription.

ATTACK IS DELAYED.

Enemy Cannot Move on Salonica Until February at Least.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A despatch from Salonica, dated Friday, says:

"Col. Bokovitch, the Serbian Minister of War, before leaving here for Brindisi on the Greek torpedo-boat destroyer Velos, said Serbia would offer the Allies in two months a completely reorganized army of 100,000 men.

"The Minister said the Bulgarians were advancing in Albania under the greatest difficulties owing to the lack of roads. He added that despite the Italian disembarkation in Albania it will be necessary for the Serbs to leave the country."

Another despatch from the same correspondent dated Saturday says the provisioning of the Austro-German, Bulgarian, and Turk troops and the transport of their artillery and munitions is so difficult that it is estimated they will not be in condition to take the offensive against the Entente allies before two weeks.

The correspondent adds that aerial reconnaissances have made known the dispositions of the troops of the central powers and their allies.

The Salonica correspondent of the Echo de Paris says:

"Bulgarian troops are quitting Monastir, being replaced by Germans, of whom 50,000 have arrived already.

"German officers declare that these troops will co-operate with the Austrians in cleaning up Albania, after which they will join the army which is to advance against Salonica."

The Greek Government faces the serious problem of supplying its troops at Serres with food as the result of the blowing up of railroad bridges by the Allies in Northern Greece, and may be compelled either to withdraw or disband certain portions of these troops, according to a Reuter Telegram Company's despatch from Salonica under date of Jan. 13.

MONTENEGRO GIVES UP

Tiny Kingdom Unconditionally Surrenders to Austria.

Peace Terms Are Being Arranged Which Will Probably Include the Cession of Mount Lovcen to Austria and the Port of Scutari to Montenegro—Austrians Fortifying Key to Adriatic.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Montenegro has unconditionally surrendered to Austria. She will lay down her arms. She is the first of the European belligerents to sue for peace in the eighteen months of fighting. Terms will be discussed at once. It is believed they will include the cession of Mount Lovcen to Austria and the northern Albanian town of Scutari to Montenegro.

Announcement of the submission of the little mountain kingdom was made yesterday by General Headquarters of the Austro-Hungarian army and by Count Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, before the Hungarian Parliament.

The sudden announcement of Montenegro's capitulation came on the heels of despatches quoting her King and Cabinet Ministers to the effect that the nation would never

STEEL FOR ARTILLERY.

Tremendous Pressure the Barrels of Big Guns Must Bear.

Modern high powered guns could not be built without steel strong enough to resist the enormous pressures to which they are subjected. Few understand how great these pressures are—almost as far beyond ordinary comprehension as are the distances of the stars or the number of atoms in a glass of water. An attempt to state the matter in a form that will mean something to the ordinary mind is made by a contributor to La Nature in an article entitled "The Strains Resisted by Gun Metal." He writes:

"When the marvels of modern artillery are described perhaps we direct our admiration too exclusively to the mechanicians who have combined to construct it. We must not, however, forget the metallurgist, for it is owing to the astonishing qualities of the metal that the gun is so well able to resist the enormous strain due to the detonation of the explosive.

"It is interesting to cite here some figures published by Commandant Regnault. At each discharge of a gun, in the case of our field pieces, in less than three-tenths of a second the pressure exceeds twenty tons to the square inch, and the speed of the projectile leaving the muzzle is more than 2,500 feet a second.

"The energy developed may be put at about 500,000 foot pounds. In other words, considering the cannon as a motor working during an exceedingly short time, we may place its rating at about 20,000,000 horsepower.

"Not only must the metal be made to resist these strains time after time, but to do so under unfavorable conditions, such as the high temperatures produced by the explosives. And not only must the metal of the gun be as strong as this, but it is the same with that of the shell. The shell of our 'seventy-five' supports a pressure estimated at seventeen tons. The work of the device that takes up the recoil reaches about twelve tons to the square inch, and the mount neutralizes at each discharge about two tons.

"In fact, these conditions are realized in quite a remarkable way. It has been possible to test in the machine shop the pieces of a battery that has fired several thousand shots and to show that they have suffered not the slightest deformation.

"This is why it is necessary to employ special steels. The use of nickel, Violent Attempt is Made to Recap- ture Trenches from Italians.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The Austrians made a violent attempt on Friday to recover the positions at Oslavia, north-west of Goritz, which they lost on November 20. These positions have been subjected to many attacks since the Italians crowded the Austrians out of them two months ago.

The attack on Friday was begun with a heavy artillery bombardment on the positions between the Peumico Torrent (south of Oslavia and between that village and the village of Peuma) and Oslavia. This was followed by an infantry attack, which was repulsed. Then came another infantry attack which was successful in gaining for the Austrians some of the trenches occupied by the Italians between Hill 188 and Oslavia.

Saturday morning the Italians made a counter-attack, driving the Austrians back beyond Oslavia and reoccupying the positions east of the village. The battle in which the Italians captured Oslavia in November was a particularly bloody engagement, the captured trenches being filled with Austrian dead when the Italians finally occupied them.

$15,000,000 Fire in Bergen.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Jan. 18.
via London.—A third of the City of Bergen, a thriving Norwegian maritime city, with a population of 90,- 000, was destroyed Saturday night by fire. The damage is estimated at $15,000,000. Two lives are reported lost. The conflagration is said to have been the worst ever recorded in Norway.

The business section, with its old wholesale houses, several of the largest of the hotels, a number of schools, the electric plant and banks and newspaper buildings, was the burned part.

The difficulties of the 2,000 persons now without homes were increased by the fact that the largest storage houses, filled with provisions for supplying the surrounding country, were burned down. It is harder to obtain groceries to-day than at any time since the outbreak of the war.

Bombardment of Lille by British.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The British bombardment of Lille, which resulted recently in the destruction of a German ammunition depot, according to the German official report, was resumed yesterday, according to the same authority, causing a fire which up to the present, the German statement says, has caused only slight material damage.

Activity on the western front Saturday was confined to artillery fire and an action between hand grenade throwers at Vauquois. French artillery dispersed German working parties in Champagne and dispersed a convoy between Auberive and St.
Souplet.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be state of siege at Cetinje, and have arrested a number of citizens on suspicion. They have searched the houses of the town, and have requisitioned foodstuffs and disarmed the inhabitants.

Meanwhile guns are being mounted on Mount Lovcen, and trenches are being dug around the city. Three divisions of infantry, with heavy artillery, have been sent to Scutari, and reinforcements are being concentrated at Cetinje in case they are needed to repulse an attack on Scu-tari.

The whereabouts of King Nicholas are unknown publicly. There is an unconfirmed report that he is on his way to Italy.

A recent despatch said that after the capture of Mount Lovcen by the Austrians advices had been received to the effect that Austria and Montenegro had arranged an armistice.

CANADIANS NOT IN FIGHT.

Alarming Rumor of Heavy Casualties Was False.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—"No foundation whatsoever for the report" was the reply made by Gen. Alderson, commanding officer of the Canadian army corps in France, to a cabled request by the Minister of Militia for information as to the despatch received from a London special correspondent and published in Toronto evening papers on Saturday to the effect that the Canadians had been in a fight, with several hundred killed and wounded.

It is thought the correspondent must have seen the casualty list for the month and made an incorrect deduction therefrom. As a matter of fact at no time during the past month have the casualties among the Canadian troops been heavy. Gen.
Sir Sam Hughes stated last night that he would take steps which would render publication of an alarming and baseless story of this kind impossible.

the latest shipping records the steam-

HIS VIEW OF TIPPING.

It Was Not the Mere Money That the Old Waiter Craved.

Tips are said to be an evil of our times, but the man who has to give them makes the statement. That vast number that receives the largest has probably found it no crime. There is much to be said on both sides, but I cannot think that it is a system which should be, indeed, can be abolished, for the giving of a tip is the recognition of personal service. It is the only way one can thank a man who is not, in his present capacity at least, in the class of the one who dispenses the coin.
And there is another reason—to argue for the other side—that was most beautifully exemplified in a story which came to me recently.

A friend of mine took into service as indoor man one who had attracted her attention as a most perfect waiter in a hotel. She paid him the same amount that he averaged as a waiter, and she found him as satisfactory in her own home as she had expected him to be.
Yet at the end of a few months he begged to return to his more exhausting duties in a great extravaganza.

"I don't know as I can make it plain to you, madam," he said to her earnestly, "but it's the tips that I look forward to. Not that they are any more, on the whole, than I get here, but there's always an uncertainty about it. I keep wondering if I am to get a good deal or very little, and it makes the day interesting. It's a kind of an adventure, in a manner of speaking, madam." — Louise Closser Hale in Century.

Leading Up to It.

"Please, Mrs. Brown," said the little boy at the kitchen door, "ma wants to know if you'd be so kind as to lend her an egg beater to beat some eggs with."

"Why, certainly," replied Mrs.
Brown. "Here it is."

"And if it ain't too much trouble," continued the boy, "would you mind lending her a couple of eggs to beat with it?"

We Must First Come Into Christ, and Then Abide in Him.

Promise of Text Limited—Many Deceived as to Their Standing—Present Conditions in Europe a Forceful Illustration—Delusions of the Past Still Held by Many—Fruits of the Holy Spirit.

Richmond, Va. Jan. 9. — Pastor Russell gave a peculiarly interesting address here to-day. His text was, "If ye abide in Me, and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." —John 15:7.

The Pastor began by calling attention to the fact that this text is often misunderstood and misapplied. He showed that this very remarkable promise is limited to certain people under special conditions; that it does not say that anybody may ask whatever he will and receive what he asked. Only those who abide in Christ are the recipients of this special favor. But before any can abide in Christ, he must come into Christ, must become a member of the Anointed Company. To associate with Christians, to attend church every Sunday, or even to join one or another of the various denominations would not necessarily bring us into Christ. "Something more than taking any one or all of these steps is necessary."

Present conditions in Europe well illustrate what it is to be merely a church member. Early in the Gospel Age a worldly element crept into the Church, and gradually introduced the idea that the mission of the Church was to convert the world, so as to keep the whole world from going into eternal torment. This error has come down to our day, and still adheres to some extent. Another wrong theory that obtained was that whoever died without having been baptized in water would go straight to eternal torture, as would also anyone who was not a church member. Under the influence of these unscriptural teachings, nearly everybody in Christendom, so-called, was drawn into the church organization. As a result all Europe is rated as Christian or as nearly so.

In the light of the incoming Age, however, we see that our forefathers had become sadly confused respecting the true teachings of the Bible. But we do not blame them. All wish to be right. Nobody wishes to be wrong. We put the responsibility for this confusion just where the Apostle Paul puts it—"the doctrine of demons." "The god of this world [Satan] hath blinded the minds of them that believe not."—1 Timothy 4:1; 2 Corinthians 4:4.

Christ's Spirit vs. Satan's Spirit.

The speaker then pointed out the difference between the two spirits which manifest themselves in people's conduct. Our Lord Jesus says: "By their fruits we shall know them." St. Paul declares: "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of His." Again, "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-control." Only in a few of God's true saints do we see these fruits. The great majority of mankind do not manifest them. While there are true saints in all nations, yet as a whole no nation manifests these fruits.—Romans 8:9; Galatians 5:22, 23.

St. Paul also describes the Satanic spirit. He tells us that the fruits of that spirit are wrath, hatred, envy, malice, strife, emulations, adultery, idolatry, murder, etc. (Galatians 5:19-21; Colossians 3:5, 6.) He did not add bomb throwing, asphyxiation by poisonous gases, and other modern devices for killing our men; but all this is included in the word "wrath." The Bible is entirely to all that they are doing. People have never been in Christ we ever had the idea that conduct is Christian, the sooner it out of our heads the better.

Abiding in Christ.

Then the Pastor showed to be a Christian. The Christ company, a body in the sea that Congress is a body. There are many members of Congress of whom is the head, so is The Christ. The Church, of The Christ, is composed of members and has one Head, Lord Jesus. God Himself has elected this Christ. Those anointed with the Holy Spirit is called may enter faith in the blood of Christ: hence to the specified condition the full surrender of himself to Lord.

Those who have thus offered themselves and have received the fruit of the Holy Spirit, must to abide in Christ by keeping fully the terms of the covenant made with God. They must God's Word with teachable knowledge know what it says, to learn concerning them. Those who fully do this may ask what

The Empire's Call to Ontario "ECONOMIZE"

Lloyd George

"We are fighting Germany, Austria, and drink, and, so far as I can see, the greatest of these three deadly foes is drink."

Lord Kitchener

The existence of the British Empire depends upon the outcome of the War. All our resources must be thrown into the scale.

The Empire's call is for men, munitions, food, clothing, and, above all things, MONEY. We are being called upon to give our millions to carry on the war. Sir Geo. E. Foster has stated that the Dominion Government might even ask for a Domestic Loan of $300,000,000. It is only a few weeks ago that Canadians subscribed over $100,000,000 to a War Loan.

These facts bring right home to us that this is, as Premier Asquith stated, "A War of Money as well as Men."

Sir Robert Borden, Sir Thomas White, Finance Minister, and other prominent men have emphasized the necessity of economy.

Conserve our wealth. Cut down expenses. This is what we must do.

Something to Think About

"The men who have recently joined the Colors are doing their utmost to prepare themselves for active service with the least possible delay. This result can only be achieved if by hard work and strict sobriety they keep themselves thoroughly fit and healthy."

Admiral Jellicoe

"In the Navy there are three qualities upon which efficiency mainly depends. They are discipline, straight shooting, and endurance; and Temperance unquestionably tends greatly to the promotion of these qualities."

Baron French

"There is no doubt that the work which the Royal Army Temperance Association carries on makes men infinitely better soldiers and better men. If men want to see regiments, battalions, squadrons, batteries, smart and efficient, they must practise these great qualities of self-control and self-sacrifice."

Something to Think About

Did you ever seriously think about the millions of dollars expended annually for alcoholic beverages in the Province of Ontario?

As nearly as can be estimated from figures, based on Dominion Government returns, the consumption of alcoholic beverages in the Dominion in 1914 was $103,049,129. Assuming that Ontario, whose population is one-third of the Dominion, consumes one-third of the alcoholic beverages, her share amounts to $34,349,709.66. Let us say $33,000,000.

In other words, Ontario's Annual Consumption of Alcoholic Beverages represents the cost of—

1st. Rifles, Machine Guns and Field Guns for an army of 690,523 men on active service for a period of 12 months.

2nd. Or Accoutrements, Camp Equipment, Harness and Saddlery, Transport Vehicles, Signalling and Telephone Equipment, Tools and Miscellaneous Requirements for 1,269,231 men at the front.

3rd. Or one year's Clothing and Necessaries for 330,000 men.

4th. Or Rations, Subsistence or Money Allowances for 226,027 "boys" on active service for one year.

5th. Or the Canadian Government's Separation Allowance for 117,773 dependents for the entire year of 1916.

The foregoing figures are based on the war estimates of the Department of Militia and Defence for 1916-17, as published on December 31st, 1915, in The Toronto Globe.

Eliminate This Expenditure

The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred believes that as a war-time measure, if for no other reason, this colossal expenditure for alcoholic beverages in Ontario should be eliminated. The Committee also has every confidence that the Provincial Government will move in this important matter as rapidly as public opinion will support them.

The function of the Citizens' Committee of One Hundred is to organize, crystalize and give expression to the present state of public opinion on the question of prohibition. The Committee believes that it can demonstrate to the Government that Ontario is overwhelmingly in favor of prohibition. The people will shortly be given the opportunity of signing a petition for presentation to the Government.

The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred is the executive head of this big new prohibition movement. It represents the whole Province.

It numbers men of both political parties—men who welcome this chance to work for prohibition now that it has been taken out of politics—earnest men who are working together for the common good.

The public, and this includes those living in DRY municipalities, are urged to join hands with the Committee and insure the success of the movement. Doing so will show that you appreciate the benefits of prohibition in your own municipality and add great strength to the Committee's campaign.

If you live in a Local Option municipality your signature to the petition is just as urgently wanted as it would be if you were under license. Province-wide prohibition would not only confer a benefit on people living where Local Option does not prevail, but would also help to enforce the law in Local Option municipalities.

573 municipalities are now dry and there are licenses in only 274. This counts as dry the municipalities voted dry on January 3rd. WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 17.—May wheat made a new high level of $1.26½ on the local market today and closed at $1.26 or 1½ over Saturday's close. July was 15c higher, closing at $1.25½. Oats were up ¼c, and flax was 1½c up. Cash demand was good for everything but No. 1 northern, which did not seem to be much wanted. There was considerable trade in low grade wheat for hospital elevators and mixing houses, and in Nos. 3, 4 and 5 for eastern mill account. Export houses bought wheat. Big export houses bought freely, but some classes of buying suggested direct British orders to meet the government requirements of double stocks to be carried by all mills in the United Kingdom.

A Lesson With His Autograph.

An admirer once wrote to Lowell describing his autograph collection and concluding with the remark, "I would be much obliged for your autograph." The reply came, bearing with it a lesson on the correct use of the words "would" and "should," which deeply impressed itself on the mind of the recipient. The response read:

Pray, do not say hereafter, "I would be obliged." If you would be obliged, be obliged and have done with it. Say, "I should be obliged," and oblige yours truly,
JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

A Constructive Suggestion.

"I am too busy," said the popular author, "to spend any time polishing up my literary style. A man who has to write 100,000 words a week has no time for such trivialities."

"Then," said the critic, "you should employ a literary valet to do it for you—to keep your punctuation marks in order, to brush off your ideas, to manicure your phrases, to press your paragraphs which are inclined to bag at the knees and to snip off the frayed edges of your grammar."

Kipling's "Vampire."

Rudyard Kipling's verses written for Sir Philip Burne-Jones' striking painting, "The Vampire," were the result of much labor and persistent pursuit of an idea that had long proved quite elusive. When it was finished and Burne-Jones expressed obligations for it Kipling wrote a delightful letter, presenting him with the copyright. "The verses for 'The Vampire,'" he wrote, "which we will call campocetry, are your property. So if any one wants to dramatize 'em, etch 'em, set 'em to music, paint 'em sky blue, translate 'em into Erse, Celtic or Hittite, use 'em for hair dye advertisement or Church of England hymn, you must deal with that man."—London Opinion.

Cuckoo Superstitions.

Listening to the first cuckoo is not without its risk. According to an old and widespread superstition, the thing a person happens to be doing when he hears the cuckoo's call for the first time in spring is the thing he is destined to do most frequently throughout the ensuing year. It would be awkward if one were doomed to go on listening for cuckoos for a twelvemonth.

Another cuckoo superstition is that the unmarried man or maid will remain in single unblendedness for as many years as the times the first bird utters its note within their hearing. Well, most maids have two thumbs to fit two ears—and two years.—London Spectator.

The means which the Committee will employ to bring about this include the circulation and presentation to the Government of a Petition asking:

The Red Cross Society

The Society acknowledges with thanks the following donations to be applied on the Ambulance Fund—$30 from the Women's Institute, Conway, and $25 from the Red Cross Society, Bath.

Many teachers in the County have written us of their intention to raise money towards the second Motor Ambulance. Some intend giving concerts, and others are placing a Mite Box in the school, the pupils saving their pennies for that purpose. We are most grateful to the teachers for their willingness to help us, and all donations will be thankfully received.

We continue to receive numerous letters from our boys at the front, thanking us for Christmas parcels sent to them. These gifts meant little to us individually, but from the letters of thanks received, they certainly brought much cheer to the boys, some of them stating that they were in the trenches when the parcels arrived.

We are pleased to add three new Life Members to our Society, making a total of twenty.

Considerable work is planned for Saturday, when our work room will be open all day. In the afternoon tea will be served.

A hockey match will be played at the rink some evening next week, between the soldiers and the town team. Proceeds in aid of the Red Cross Society.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the Daughters of the Empire.

Appreciative letters of acknowledgment continue to come to us from the front for gifts received, which gives us great satisfaction to have been able to fill some of these needs.

The call for socks is more insistent than ever, a most urgent plea has been received through Dr. Donald MacGilloray, of the Toronto University Base Hospital, at Saloniki. He tells us of 2,000 n.e.n. many with their feet frozen, and many without any socks at all. The zero weather we have been experiencing for a few days, must help us to realize what those men are suffering, and how urgent is the need.

It is a plea that no women can resist. Two splendid cases of supplies have just been sent off, one for "Queen's" No. 5 Stationary Hospital, to go with supplies accompanying the unit with sailing orders for the 21st inst., for Cairo, Egypt. The other, a case of blankets and clothing for the

TYRANNY OF CASTE.

The Despised Hindu Pariah and the Bonds He Strives to Break.

Nowhere does Hindu priestcraft show its original despotism more clearly than in the ordinances prohibiting all social communication with the "depressed classes," or the so called pariahs.

Those who know conditions will agree that neither the term "pariah" nor "depressed" is strong or explicit enough to convey to the minds of the readers the real condition of the pariah. A dog is allowed to come near a man, a cat is allowed to enter a house, but not a pariah. If even the shadow of a pariah touches, a caste man the latter must bathe away his pollution.

One day on the bank of a river a Brahman was performing his midday ablutions. A few pariahs were tugging at a boat, with a rope tied to the mast. The moment the shadow of the rope fell on the Brahman at prayer he looked at the men who were tugging the boat and was furious with rage. His bath was lost, his ablutionary rites lost, by the touch of the shadow of a rope in the hands of pariahs. He plunged into the river again, this time not saying his bathing hymns, but abusing the pariahs for causing him extra trouble.

The maharaja of Travancore and the gaekwar of Baroda have already allowed the pariahs to send representatives into their imperial legislative councils. The latter has established special schools and boarding houses to facilitate the education of the "untouchables" of his state. The pariahs themselves are taking courage and objecting to the ignominies to which they are subjected. At the least displeasure they go on strike and bring the high caste people to their knees. Some time ago the sweepers and scavengers of Simla went on strike for higher wages and made the government of his Britannic majesty accept the terms which they dictated.—Basanta Koomar Roy in Century Magazine.

FUTURE OF THE HORSE.

Can the Heavy Draft Animal Survive the Motor Truck?

The heavy draft horse is doomed. He will not vanish suddenly, but his hour has struck. Motor vehicles already are displacing him in cities. The cheap farm tractor will do the same in the country. In a few decades the great, magnificent brutes will be little more than a memory. Their places will be taken by bloodless machines, that never whinny greetings to a kind master, never search one's pockets for sugar—and never break their legs on icy pavements or drag out a friendless old age under the whips of stupid, greedy drivers.

When one thinks of these last considerations the horseless age doesn't seem so gloomy a prophecy. But if man is wise there will be no horseless age.

If man has any real wisdom—and that belief, though often disappointed, never dies—the horse will be promoted to the position of humanity's chief pet and plaything, but always with a substratum of usefulness which will keep him from degenerating into a mere toy. The draft horse, the trotter—even the "general purpose animal"—may go, but the saddle horse ought to stay and

It is necessary for all our workers to busy themselves with new supplies, for as soon as the large case for the Navy is despatched, which will soon be completed, our stock will be considerably reduced.

The attention of our members, workers and the public is called to our forth-coming entertainment in about three weeks time.

Keep the middle part of the second week in February disengaged, as what we shall offer will be a novelty and interesting.

As the Commemoration of Violet Day took place at Mrs. Templeton's on Thursday, and tea was served—and as in consequence, no work-meeting was held, we shall hold the same at our room on Saturday the 22nd inst., from 2.30 p.m. and trust a goodly number will respond to this intimation and be present.

After this week, our regular work-meeting will be re-umed on Thurs-days, when tea will be served, and the room will also be open on Satur-days for work, and for the reception of the same.

That Popular Three-Fifths!

"The ball and chain of the three-fifths clause fastened to the legs of the temperance people of Ontario."—Sarnia Observer.

"The three-fifths clause was the chief victor yesterday."—Port Arthur Chronicle.

"There is little use in some people praying for a "dry Brantford" so long as they are willing to continue in office the men who are responsible for maintaining that great fortress of the liquor traffic in this province, the three-fifths handicap. In Manitoba the three-fifths prevailed at one time, having been copied from Ontario, but even the Roblin Government saw its unfairness and returned to the bare majority principle. Is it not time the people of this province insisted upon the Hearst Government giving them a fair deal in this matter."—Brantford Expositor.

"Sisyphus, everlastingly rolling his boulder up the hill by patient toil, only to see it go crashing down again just as it neared the top, had no harder task than the temperance men of Ontario who are endeavoring, in face of the three-fifths handicap, to abolish the bar. What is Mr. Hearst going to do about it? The Premier of Ontario had better wake up. If Premier Hearst stands by the bar, he cannot remain Premier Hearst."—Toronto Globe.

Fashions in Borneo.

According to the rules of Bornean fashion it is deemed necessary to mold one's limbs into a more shapely form than that bestowed by nature. This is done really effectively by winding strong brass wire round the ankles, the wrists, under the knees and above the elbows of children. Growth at these points is in consequence greatly hampered, with the result that the limbs come to be deformed or, according to Dyak ideas, brought into proper shape.—Exchange.

him from degenerating into a mere toy. The draft horse, the trotter—even the "general purpose animal"—may go, but the saddle horse ought to stay and thrive. Just as a medical prescription, he is well worth while, for the old English phrase that "the outside of a horse is the best thing for the insides of a man" still holds true, and as an instructor of youth and a means of real contact with nature he has no rival but the dog.

Pasteur's Tribute to Lister.

Of all the tributes to the genius of Lord Lister, the discoverer of antiseptic surgery, probably the most touching was that paid to him by Pasteur, the famous French scientist. At a meeting of savants in Paris many years ago Lord Lister was present, and his brilliant achievements were explained to the audience by Pasteur. As he progressed in his speech he became more and more emotional, and at last he was so carried away by his own eloquence that the tears stood in his eyes. Finally he stepped down from the platform, took Lord Lister, who was in the front row of the audience, by both hands, led him back on to the platform and kissed him on both cheeks, after the manner of the French, in full view of the assembly. Few could have looked on unmoved at the great Frenchman's act of homage to the distinguished English surgeon.

In Sympathy.

The two men had met at a dinner party and were talking in a corner by themselves.

"You see that tall woman with the sharp nose and the critical eye?" asked one of them.

"Yes," said the other quietly.

"Well, I've watched her for quite awhile. She's always got her nose into somebody's business. She's the last woman I'd marry."

"Which shows how strangely in sympathy we are," said the other without resentment. "She's the last woman I did marry."—Exchange.

The Lacking Stroke.

"Do you think it would improve my style," inquired the varsity man who had got into the crew through favoritism, "if I were to acquire a faster stroke?"

"It would improve the crew," replied the candid trainer, "if you got a paralytic stroke."—London Tit-Bits.

Grenadiers.

Evelyn writes in his diary under date 1678: "Now were brot into service a new sort of soldiers called Grenadiers, who were dexterous in flinging hand grenades; they had furred caps with coped crowns, which made them look very fierce; and some had long hoods hanging down behind as we picture fools." The original grenadiers hurled their grenades, and then charged the enemy with hatchets.—London Standard.

Not the Usual Kind.

"Why so? I always understood it was fine."

BRITISH NEW SHELL SPELLS DEATH TO FOE'S SUBMARINE

Washington, Jan. 15.—When the list of new ships to be built for the United States navy was published recently, it is probable that a great many people who were very much surprised to see that besides a number of submarines, there was a relatively large proportion of battleships. "Surely," they said, "if there is one thing the war has shown, it is that battleships are useless against submarines. Why, they don't even dare leave harbor unless they are guarded by a flotilla of destroyers."

And yet there are some very clever men in the Navy Department, who have not decided to build those battleships without a good deal of reason.

Moreover, the wonderful submarine blockade that was to starve England to submission in three months seems to have been a considerable failure. The English are not starved by any means, in fact, they are carrying on a nice little blockade of their own in the Baltic, while the terrible new German submarines lie rotting in the North Sea ooze. And the reason for their failure is the reason why America—like some other nations—continues to build battleships.

That reason, according to information which has now reached this country is the British submarine shell.

TRAPPING SUBS.

When the submarine problem began to press for solution, the British tried a number of devices. They planted nets in likely spots, as poachers do in the run of a hare; they disguised patrol boats as peaceful fishing craft; they sent out a host of light power boats with wicked little cannon in the bows to scout over every yard of the seas and follow the submarines like mosquitos. But the problem remained unsolved.

Submarines were caught, of course—a good many of them—but that didn't mend the fact that Britain's great fleet hardly dared to sail the open seas, and the British couldn't forget that in the big fight in the North Sea their battle cruisers had been forced to turn and run from their burning and almost defenseless enemy by the mere glimpse of two or three tiny periscopes—"feathering" across the surface.

What was needed was some effective way for the battleship to defend herself—to strike at her enemy directly without having to depend on destroyers or reduce her speed and manoeuvring capacity to an appalling extent by the use of cumbersome underwater structure to resist torpedoes.

After all, the real work of the dreadnought is to destroy the enemy's big ships. To do this she must free herself from the menace of the submarine. The trouble was that when a submarine was submerged it was impossible to hit it. It could steal along twelve feet below the surface, watching the battleship, through its periscope, and unless the battleship was lucky enough to shoot away the periscope she hadn't one chance in a hundred of escaping the torpedo. Those twelve feet of water were like an elastic cushion off which the big shells, fired at a flat trajectory, bounded—ricocheted is the technical word—like so many tennis balls. As for hitting the periscope, one couldn't even see it save at short range and that meant the risk of a torpedo with its thousand pounds of gun cotton.

So the British set themselves to find a shell that would not bounce.

EXPLODES UNDER WATER.

Right at the beginning of their experiments they made one pleasing discovery. A shell exploding under water has several times the effect of a shell exploding in the air. Thus forty pounds of lyddite exploded at a depth of twelve feet away, would destroy a submarine or would rip off the propellers and rudder of a battleship. At fifty feet even the battleship hull would be very badly damaged.

The next found that if they made the nose of a shell a certain shape instead of ricocheting along the water it would dive when it touched the surface, even though fired with a flat trajectory. If it was aimed at a submarine it would plunge right at it the moment it struck the water.

But another difficulty still remained. Instead of exploding by concussion on striking its target, or by a time fuse set to act a given time after leaving the gun, it was necessary to have a shell that would explode at a certain depth below the surface so as to deal with the submarine effectively. One could not hope to make a bullseye with under-water shooting, but one did not need to do so. Four hundred pounds of gun cotton would smash any submarine within 1,000 feet; all that was wanted was the explosion at approximately the right depth, quite irrespective of time or concussion.

FIRE BY THE WATER.

At this point the memory of one of the experimenters came to his aid. He recollected that years ago a somewhat primitive automobile he then owned had suffered from the stoppage of its gasoline feed pipes, and he had found that while liquid will not run freely along a small tube under atmospheric pressure. If a thin wire be placed in the tube capillary attraction will draw the liquid along the wire quite as freely as it is needed. Not only did he cure his automobile with his advice, but he patented it and sold

Interesting Letter From Cairo, Egypt.

Abbassia Cavalry Barracks, Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 19, '15.

Dear Mother,—

This is my half day off. We had two operations this a.m. One had a bullet near his ankle, which had been there some time and no one suspected it. He was walking when wounded and as the shrapnel bullet came straight down from the sky, it went in above the knee and out at the back lower down, then into calf of leg and lodged in his ankle.

20th. I did not go on a trip yesterday, but in the evening Dr. Jwamer, the missionary among the Mohammedans here, gave an illustrated lecture on Mohammedanism. It was very interesting. He has spent twenty-five years in Persia, Arabia and Egypt. He was at "Queen's" two years ago.

21st. To-day there was a baseball match in Cairo, between the N.C.O.'s of the unit, and the men. I was on the N.C.O. team and we beat them 15 to 9 in five innings.

There were several Americans there and they served tea and cake afterwards, so altogether we had a fine afternoon.

The baseball field is on the island of Ghezireh in the Nile. It is a very beautiful place, covered with palm trees and cypress trees, the kind whose roots grow down from the branches. One of them makes quite a park. There are beds of flowers of all kinds and everything is beautifully kept.

The afternoon was pretty warm, but the Americans who have been here several years say it was quite a typical winter day, though the nights are much cooler in February.

I am the only Sgt. in camp tonight, so I am acting Sgt.-Major, which, I think, I can hold down for a few hours, if the duties are not more onerous than at present.

25th. The last two days have been quite chilly, even in the middle of the day, but I have not had to put on underwear yet.

The other night several of us had a fine ride in the Ambulance, when it took some patients out to Mena camp at the pyramids, it was a bright moonlight night, we left at 7 p.m. and got back at 8.45, it is about fifteen miles out there. Of course, we had to go through the city, then along a straight road of about ten miles, smooth as glass and lined on each side with lebbah trees, and there was nothing to slow up for. On each side of the road nearly all the way was water from the overflowed Nile, this went almost to the pyramids which are much more impressive by moonlight than by daylight.

The camp lies over behind the pyramids. There were acres of tents and horses, thousands of them one would think, tethered in long lines, I think I sent a picture card of it.

The mornings are very dark now when we get up at 5.45, but by 6.15 it is light. There is practically no dawn or twilight, the sun just jumps up and in the evening suddenly falls down behind the horizon without warning.

One afternoon off lately, I started for the Egyptian museum, and after placed in the tube capillary attraction will draw the liquid along the wire quite as freely as it is needed. Not only did he cure his automobile with his advice, but he patented it and sold the patent to a firm of aeroplane builders.

That idea of water trickling along a tube was the basis of his new fuse. Instead of the old fuse, burning powder the new one caused the explosion by the combination of water with a pinch of potash. The sea water trickled along the wire down the tube to the potash. When it reached it the explosion followed; and best of all, experiments showed that the depth of which the explosion occurred was in exact relation to the length of the tube. Thus with a short tube the shell had time only to dive six feet before the explosion came, while with a tube twice as long it had plunged 12 feet before the water mingled with the potash.

That practically gave the experimenters what they wanted. After a few more tests they knew how to set the fuse to explode at a given inch of depth, and at the same time another device prevented the shells from exploding by accidental or deliberate flooding of the battleship's magazine where the shells would be stored.

Next the British and Italian Navies had some more experiments on a large scale in quiet secluded spots, and then the British went out into the North Sea and cleared away all the German submarines. That is said to be the reason why we are still building battleships in this country and why German newspapers would rather talk about the Balkans than the submarine blockade.

The exact method of the clearing away process was borrowed by the British navy from that almost equally efficient institution, the French field artillery. The French gunners had invented a system of mass firing equally effective for attacking or repulsing an attack, called the "curtain of fire." They simply plastered with shells the arc of the circle behind the enemy's troops, thus making a barrier of steel and melinite, as well as fire, through which neither reinforcements nor reserves could pass. Then their own infantry was free to destroy the enemy so shut off from help.

The British navy turned the curtain of fire on the German submarines. As the big ships advanced boldly into German waters the submarines came out in droves to destroy them, thinking that the British had suddenly been struck mad.

Then at a couple of miles range the battleships let fly the "curtain of fire" down behind the horizon without warning.

One afternoon off lately, I started for the Egyptian museum, and after getting on the wrong car, and going two or three miles out of my way, I at last took the right car and reached the museum.

It is a modern building and contains the relics found in the tombs in different parts of Egypt—statues, coffins, mummies, pottery, jewellery, instruments of different kinds, and many other things I did not have time to pay attention to. The most interesting to me were the mummies of the priests and kings, and the jewellery found in the coffins and on the bodies, which consisted of rings, bracelets, pins, crowns, belts, etc., nearly all of gold. It was closely guarded, for I suppose it was priceless.

The mummy of Ramesis II (Pharaoh of the oppression) is there, also his son, and King Unas, the Priest Ptah, and many others.

After I got through there I went over to Esbeekah garden where I sat and listened to a band concert given by a New Zealand band. There is always a crowd at these concerts, and it is a strange mixture. Australians, New Zealanders, English, a few Indian soldiers, tall Sikhs with turbans and loose tunics, natives of all kinds, real Egyptians, Assyrians and Soudanese, Greeks, French Italians, an occasional American, and at least one Canadian.

There were several richly dressed children out with their nursemaid, a Soudanese, and as black as a stove.

The "Christian Guardians" you sent and which came to-day, are very interesting. Mr. Watkins describes things well. I have heard several Canadians in England tell of "Hill 60," and Ypres, but they did not want to recall any of the things which happened there.

I think things have been just as bad up on the peninsula, except for the gas. The hardship in regard to food and water are also much greater. Most of the men had no baths for weeks, and nearly every one was as lousy as possible.

The man with both legs off below the knees is doing well and will have a good pair of stumps. Hard luck, but he is quite cheerful. He was a dry goods merchant. He will go with the next batch to England. He was showing me the nose of the shell which took his legs off. It is the end of a hollow shell and weighs about a pound. Inside is the date it was made, 1904, also the word "Karlushe."

Dec. 9th—One of the patients yesterday was showing me an aeroplane dart which he picked up on the peninsula. They are about six inches long, as thick as a lead pencil, and shaped like it, except that one half is grooved in all directions from their big guns. Soon there was a circle of submarine shells sinking to their appointed death.

The onrushing submarines met exactly the same fate as the German reserves on land when they tried to pierce the French curtain—they were simply blown to pieces.

CAN KAISER WILHELM ESCAPE FAMILY BANE?

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Le Journal prints an interview with an English doctor, Mark Rowell, who, the newspaper says, acted as assistant to Sir Morell Mackenzie when the latter performed an operation on the father of Emperor William for cancer of the throat at San Remo, in 1888.

Dr. Howell is quoted as saying that while it is impossible to make any diagnosis in the case of Emperor William, there is one outstanding fact, the importance of which should not be underrated. It is that several of the German Emperor's ascendants, both on his father's and mother's side, have died of cancer. If the Emperor is really suffering from cancer in the throat, Dr. Howell contends, he might live under the most favorable conditions 18 months or two years. An operation, even tho wholly successful, he adds, could prolong the emperor's life a few months only.

PENROD

"Henry Passloe Schofield," returned the lady, "I don't know what is to be done with that boy; I do not!"

"You mean Penrod?"

"Who else could I mean?" She sat up, exasperated, to stare at him. "Henry Passloe Schofield, you've got to take this matter in your hands. It's beyond me!"

"Well, what has he?"

"Last night I got to thinking," she began rapidly, "about what Clara told us—thank heaven she and Margaret and little Clara have gone to ten at Cousin Charlotte's—but they'll be home soon—about what she said about Miss Spence—"

"You mean about Penrod's being a comfort?"

"Yes, and I kept thinking and thinking and thinking about it till I couldn't stand it any!"

"By George!" shouted Mr. Schofield suddenly, stooping to look under the piano. A statement that he had suddenly remembered his son's presence would be lacking in accuracy, for the highly sensitized Penrod was, in fact, no longer present. No more was Duke, his faithful dog.

"What's the matter?"

"Nothing," he returned, striding to the open window and looking out. "Go on."

"Oh!" she moaned. "It must be kept from Clara. And I'll never hold up my head again if John Farry ever hears of it!"

"Hears of what?"

"Well, I just couldn't stand it, I got so curious. And I thought, of course, if Miss Spence had become a little unbalanced it was my duty to know it as Penrod's mother and she his teacher. So I thought I would just call on her at her apartment after school and have a chat and see. And I did, and—oh!"

"Well?"

"I've just come from there, and she told me she told me! Oh, I've never known anything like this!"

"What did she tell you?"

Mrs. Schofield, making a great effort, managed to assume a temporary appearance of calm. "Henry," she said solemnly, "bear this in mind, whatever you do to Penrod it must be through the doorway, and he was preceded by a small, hurried, wistful dog with a warm doughnut in his mouth. The kitchen door slammed petulantly, inclosing the sore voice of Della, whereupon Penrod and Duke seated themselves upon the pleasant sward and immediately consumed the spoils of their raid.

From the cross street which formed the side boundary of the Schofields' ample yard came a jingle of harness and the cadenced clatter of a pair of trotting horses, and Penrod, looking up, beheld the passing of a fat acquaintance, torpid amid the conservative splendors of a rather old-fashioned victoria. This was Roderick Magsworth Bitts, Jr., a fellow sufferer at the Friday afternoon dancing class, but otherwise not often a companion; a home sheltered lad, tutored privately and preserved against the coarsening influences of rude comradeship and miscellaneous information. Heavily overgrown in all physical dimensions, virtuous and placid, this cloistered mutton was wholly uninteresting to Penrod Schofield. Nevertheless, Roderick Magsworth Bitts, Jr., was a personage on account of the importance of the Magsworth Bitts family, and it was Penrod's destiny to increase Roderick's celebrity far, far beyond its present aristocratic limitations.

The Magsworth Bittses were important because they were impressive. There was no other reason. And they were impressive because they believed themselves important. The adults of the family were impregnable formal. They dressed with reticent elegance and wore the same nose and the same expression—an expression which indicated that they knew something exquisite and sacred which other people could never know. Other people in their presence were apt to feel mysteriously ignoble and to become secretly uneasy about ancestors, gloves and pronunciation. The Magsworth Bitts manner was withholding and reserve though sometimes gracious granting small smiles as great favors and giving off a chilling kind of preciousness. Naturally when any citizen of the community did anything unconventional or improper or made a mistake or had a living organism were unsuccessful, but he convinced himself forever that a spider cannot walk with a beetle's legs. Della then enhanced zoological interest by depositing upon the back porch a large rat trap from the cellar, the prison of four live rats awaiting execution.

Penrod at once took possession, retiring to the empty stable, where he installed the rats in a small wooden box with a sheet of broken window glass, held down by a brickbat, over the top. Thus the symptoms of their agitation when the box was shaken or hammered upon could be studied at leisure. Altogether this Saturday was starting splendidly.

After a time the student's attention was withdrawn from his specimens by a peculiar smell, which, being followed up by a system of selective sniffing, proved to be an emanation leaking into the stable from the alley. He opened the back door.

Across the alley was a cottage which a thrifty neighbor had built on the rear line of his lot and rented to negroes, and the fact that a negro family was now in process of "moving in" was manifested by the presence of a thin mule and a ramsackle wagon, the latter laden with the semblance of a stove and a few other unpretentious household articles.

A very small darky boy stood near the mule. In his hand was a rusty chain, and at the end of the chain the delighted Penrod perceived the source of the special smell he was tracing—a large raccoon. Duke, who had shown not the slightest interest in the rats, set up a frantic barking and stimulated a ravelling assault upon the strange animal. It was only a bit of actung, however, for Duke was an old dog, had suffered much and desired no unnecessary sorrow, wherefore he confined his demonstrations to alarms and excursions and presently sat down at a distance and expressed himself by intermittent threatenings in a quavering falsetto.

"What's that coon's name?" asked Penrod, intending no discourtesy.

"Aim gomme mame," said the small darky.

"What?"

"Aim gomme mame."

"What?"

The small darky looked annoyed.

"Aim gomme mame, I hell you," he said impatiently.

Penrod conceived that insult was intended.

"What's the matter of you?" he demanded, advancing. "You get fresh with me and I'll—"

"Hyuh, white boy!" A colored youth of Penrod's own age appeared in the doorway of the cottage. "You let 'at brothuh mine alone. He ain' do nothin' to you."

"Well, why can't he answer?"

"He can't. He can't talk no better'n what he was talkin'. He tongue tie."

"Oh!" said Penrod, mollified; then, obeying an impulse so universally aroused in the human breast under like circumstances that it has become a quip, he turned to the afflicted one.

"Talk some more," he begged eagerly. "I hoe you ackoom aim gomme mame," was the prompt response. In Both brothers looked proud. Penrod's profound in flatteringly visible, a tribute unusualness.

"Hem bow goy," suggested eagerly.

"Got a what?"

"Verman say tell you 'bo explained Herman. "Ma Queenie move in town an' house all fix up befo' pappy

"Out of where?"

"Jail. Pappy cut a man, lice done kep' him in jail c

"What did she tell you?" Mrs. Schofield, making a great effort, managed to assume a temporary appearance of calm. "Henry," she said solemnly, "bear this in mind, whatever you do to Penrod it must be done in some place when Clara won't hear it. But the first thing to do is to find him."

Within view of the window from which Mr. Schofield was gazing was the closed door of the storeroom in the stable, and just outside this door Duke was performing a most engaging trick.

His young master had taught Duke to "sit up and beg" when he wanted anything, and if that didn't get it to "speak." Duke was facing the closed door and sitting up and begging, and now he also spoke—in a loud, clear bark.

There was an open transom over the door, and from this descended—hurled by an unseen agency—a can half filled with old paint.

It caught the small besieger of the door on his thoroughly surprised right ear, encouraged him to some remarkable acrobatics and turned large portions of him a dull blue. Allowing only a moment to perplexity and deciding after a single and evidently unappetizing experiment not to cleanse himself of paint, the loyal animal resumed his quaint, upright posture.

Mr. Schofield seated himself on the window sill, whence he could keep in view that pathetic picture of unrequited love.

"Go on with your story, mamma," he said. "I think I can find Penrod when we want him."

And a few minutes later he added, "And I think I know the place to do it in."

Again the faithful voice of Duke was heard pleading outside the bolted door.

Penrod entered the selfschool Monday morning picturesquely leaning upon a man's cane, shortened to support a cripple approaching the age of twelve. He arrived about twenty minutes late, limping deeply, his brave young mouth drawn with pain, and the sensation he created must have been a solace to him, the only possible criticism of this entrance being that it was just a shade too heroic. Perhaps for that reason it failed to stagger Miss Spence, a woman so saturated with suspicion that she penalized Penrod for tardiness as promptly and as coldly as if he had been a mere, ordinary, un mutilated boy. Nor would she entertain any discussion of the justice of her ruling. It seemed almost that she feared to argue with him.

However, the distinction of cane and limp remained to him, consolations which he protracted far into the week—until Thursday evening, in fact, when Mr. Schofield, observing from a window his son's pursuit of Duke round and round the back yard, confiscated the cane, with the promise that it should not remain idle if he saw Penrod limping again. Thus, succeeding a depressing Friday, another Saturday brought the necessity for new inventions.

It was a scented morning in apple blossom time. At about ten of the clock Penrod emerged hastily from the kitchen door. His pockets bulged abnormally, so did his cheeks, and he swallowed with difficulty. A threatening mop, wielded by a cooklike arm in a checkered sleeve, followed him though sometimes granting small smiles as great favors and giving off a chilling kind of precousness. Naturally when any citizen of the community did anything unconventional or improper or made a mistake or had a relative who went wrong that citizen's first and worst fear was that the Magsworth Bittses would hear of it. In fact, this painful family had for years terrorized the community, though the community had never realized that it was terrorized and invariably spoke of the family as the "most charming circle in town." By common consent Mrs. Roderick Magsworth Bitts officiated as the supreme model as well as critic in chief of morals and deportment for all the unlucky people prosperous enough to be elevated to her acquaintance.

Magsworth was the important part of the name. Mrs. Roderick Magsworth Bitts was a Magsworth born herself, and the Magsworth crest decorated not only Mrs. Magsworth Bitts' note paper, but was on the china, on the table linen, on the chimney pieces, on the opaque glass of the front door, on the victoria and on the harness, though omitted from the garden hose and the lawn mower.

Naturally no sensible person dreamed of connecting that illustrious crest with the unfortunate and notorious Rena Magsworth, whose name had grown week by week into larger and larger type upon the front pages of newspapers owing to the gradually increasing public and official belief that she had poisoned a family of eight. However, the statement that no sensible person could have connected the Magsworth Bitts family with the arsenical Rena takes no account of Penrod Schofield.

CHAPTER VIII. The Two Families.

PENROD never missed a murder, a banging or an electrocution in the newspapers. He knew almost as much about Rena Magsworth as her jurymen did, though they sat in a courtroom 200 miles away, and he had it in mind—so frank he was—to ask Roderick Magsworth Bitts, Jr., if the murderess happened to be a relative.

The present encounter, being merely one of apathetic greeting, did not afford the opportunity. Penrod took off his cap, and Roderick, seated between his mother and one of his grownup sisters, nodded sluggishly, but neither Mrs. Magsworth Bitts nor her daughter acknowledged the salutation of the boy in the yard. They disapproved of him as a person of little consequence, and that little bad. Snubbed, Penrod thoughtfully restored his cap to his head. A boy can be cut as effectually as a man, and this one was chilled to a low temperature. He wondered if they despised him because they had seen a last fragment of doughnut in his hand; then he thought that perhaps it was Duke who had disgraced him. Duke was certainly no fashionable looking dog.

The resilient spirits of youth, however, presently revived, and, discovering a spider upon one knee and a beetle simultaneously upon the other, Penrod forgot Mrs. Roderick Magsworth Bitts in the course of some experiments infringing upon the domain of Dr. Carrel. Penrod's efforts, with the aid of a pin, to effect a transference of

"I hoe you ackoom aim gommoo name," was the prompt response. In

"You get fresh with me and I'll—" which a slight ostentation was manifest. Unmistakable tokens of vanity had appeared upon the small, swart countenance.

"What's he mean?" asked Penrod, enchanted.

"He say he tole you 'at coon ain' got no name."

"What's your name?"

"I'm name Herman."

"What's his name?" Penrod pointed to the tongue tied boy.

"Verman. Was three us boys in ow family. Ol'est one name Sherman. 'N 'en come me; I'm Herman. 'N 'en come him; he Verman. Sherman dead. Verman, he de littles' one."

"You goin' to live here?" "Umhugh. Done move in f'm way outen on a fahm."

He pointed to the north with his right hand, and Penrod's eyes opened wide as they followed the gesture. Herman had no forefinger on that hand.

low wrapping paper, discarded by Sam's mother in her spring house-cleaning. There were half filled cans and buckets of paint in the storeroom adjoining the carriage house and presently the side wall of the stable flamed information upon the passerby from a great and spreading poster.

"Publicity," primal requisite of all theatrical and amphitheatrical enter-prise thus provided, subsequent ar-rangements proceeded with a fury of energy which transformed the empty hayloft. True, it is impossible to say just what the hayloft was transform-ed into, but history warrantably clings to the statement that it was trans-formed. Duke and Sherman were se-cured to the rear wall at a considerable distance from each other after an ex-hibition of reluctance on the part of Duke, during which he displayed a nervous energy and agility almost miraculous in so small and middle aged a dog. Benches were improvised for spectators; the rats were brought up; finally the rafters, corncrib and hay chute were ornamented with flags and strips of bunting from Sam Williams' attic. Sam returning from the excursion wearing an old silk hat and accompanied (on account of a rope) by a fine dachshund encountered on the highway. In the matter of personal decoration paint was generously used; an interpretation of the spiral, inclin-ing to whites and greens, becoming brilliantly effective upon the dark facial backgrounds of Herman and Verman, while the countenances of Sam and Penrod were each supplied with the black mustache and imperial, lacking which no professional show-man can be esteemed conscientious.

It was regretfully decided in coun-cil that no attempt be made to add Queenie to the list of exhibits, her brothers warmly declining to act as ambassadors in that cause. They were certain Queenie would not like the idea, they said, and Herman pictur-esquely described her activity on oc-casions when she had been annoyed by too much attention to her appear-ance. However, Penrod's disappoint-ment was alleviated by an inspiration which came to him in a moment of pondering upon the dachshund, and the entire party went forth to add an en-riching line to the poster.

They found a group of seven, includ-ing two adults, already gathered in the street to read and admire this work.

A heated argument took place be-tween Sam and Penrod, the point at issue being settled finally by the draw-ing of straws, whereupon Penrod, with pardonable self importance—in the presence of an audience now increased to nine—slowly painted the words in-

This is the only genuine one fingered tattooed wild man. Last on the program, gen-til-mun and lay-deeze, we have Verman, the savage tattooed wild boy, that can't speak only his native foreign languages. Talk some, Verman."

Verman obliged and made an instan-taneous hit. He was encored raptur-ously again and again, and, thrilling with the unique pleasure of being ap-preciated and misunderstood at the same time, would have talked all day but too gladly. Sam Williams, how-ever, with a true showman's foresight, whispered to Penrod, who rang down on the monologue.

"Gen-til-mun and lay-deeze, this closes our puffformance. Pray pass out quietly and with as little jostling as possible. As soon as you are all out there's goin' to be a new puffformance, and each and all are welcome at the same and simple price of admission. Pray pass out quietly and with as lit-tle jostling as possible. Re-mem-bur

And (again alas) this spoiled darling of public favor, like many another, was fated to know in good time the fickleness of that favor.

But during all the morning perfor-mances he was the idol of his audience and looked it. The climax of his pop-ularity came during the fifth overture of the Schofield & Williams military band, when the music was quite drown-ed in the agitated clamors of Miss Rennsdale, who was endeavoring to ascend the stairs in spite of the phys-ical dissuasion of her governess.

"I won't go home to lunch!" scream-ed Miss Rennsdale, her voice accompa-nied by a sound of ripping. "I will hear the tatooed wild boy talk some more! It's lovely—I will hear him talk! I will! I will! I want to listen to Verman—I want to—I want to!"

Walling, she was borne away, of her sex not the first to be fascinated by obscurity nor the last to champion its eloquence.

Verman was almost unendurable af-ter this, but, like many, many other man-agers, Schofield & Williams restrained their choler and even laughed fulsome-ly when their principal attraction es-sayed the role of a comedian in private and seemed and seemed to them

CHAPTER IX.

The New Star.

SAM, Penrod, Herman and Verman withdrew in considerable state from nonpaying view and, repairing to the bay loft, declared the exhibition open to the public. Oral proclamation was made by Sam, and then the loitering multitude was enticed by the seductive strains of a band, the two partners performing upon combs and paper, Herman and Verman upon tin pans with sticks.

The effect was immediate. Visitors appeared upon the stairway and sought admission. Herman and Verman took position among the exhibits, near the wall; Sam stood at the entrance officiating as Barker and ticket seller, while Penrod, with debonair suavity, acted as curator, master of ceremonies and lecturer. He greeted the first to enter with a courtly bow. They consisted of Miss Rennsdale and her nursery governess, and they paid spot cash for their admission.

"Walk in, lay-deeze; walk right in. Pray do not obstruct the passageway," said Penrod in a remarkable voice. "Pray be seated. There is room for each and all."

Miss Rennsdale and governess were followed by Mr. George Basset and baby sister (which proves the perfection of George's character) and six or seven other neighborhood children, a most satisfactory audience, although, subsequent to Miss Rennsdale and governess, admission was wholly by pin.

"Gen-til-mun and lay-déeze," shouted Penrod, "I will first call your at-tain-shon to our genuine South American dog, part alligator!" He pointed to the dachshund, and added, in his ordinary tone, "That's him." Straightway re-assuming the character of showman, he bellowed: "Next, you see Duke, the genuine, full blooded Indian dog from the far western plains and Rocky mountains. Next, the trained Michigan rats, captured way up there and trained to jump and run all around the box at the—at the—at the slightest pre-text!" He paused, partly to take breath and partly to enjoy his own surprised discovery that this phrase was in his vocabulary.

"At the slightest pre-text!" he repeated, and continued, suiting the action to the word: "I will now hammer upon the box, and each and all may see these genuine full blooded Michigan rats perform at the slightest pre-text! There! (There's all they do now, but I and Sam are goin' to train 'em lots more before this afternoon.) Gen-til-mun and lay-deeze, I will kindly now call your at-tain-shon to Sherman, the wild animal from Africa, costing the lives of the wild trapper and many of his companions. Next let me kindly interroduce Herman and Verman. Their father got mad and stuck his pitchfork right inside of another man, exactly as promised upon the advertisements outside the big tent, and got put in jail. Look at them well, gen-til-mun and lay-deeze. There is no extra charge, and each and all are welcome at the same and simple price of admission. Pray pass out quietly and with as little jostling as possible. Remem-bur the price is only 1 cent, the tenth part of a dime, or twenty pins, no bent ones taken. Pray pass out quietly and with as little jostling as possible. The Schofield & Williams military band will play before each puffmance, and each and all are welcome for the same and simple price of admission. Pray pass out quietly and with as little jostling as possible."

Forthwith the Schofield & Williams military band began a second overture, in which something vaguely like a tune was at times distinguishable, and all of the first audience returned, most of them having occupied the interval in hasty excursions for more pins, Miss Rennsdale and governess, however, again paying coin of the republic and receiving deference and the best seats accordingly. And when a third performance found all of the same inveterate patrons once more crowding the auditorium and seven recruits added the pleasurable excitement of the partners in their venture will be understood by any one who has seen a metropolitan manager strolling about the foyer of his theater some evening during the earlier stages of an assured "phenomenal run."

From the first there was no question which feature of the entertainment was the attraction extraordinary. Verman—Verman, the savage tattooed wild boy, speaking only his native foreign languages—Verman was a triumph! Beaming, wreathed in smiles, melodious, incredibly fluent, he had but to open his lips and a dead hush fell upon the audience. Breathless, they leaned forward, hanging upon his every semi-syllable, and, when Penrod checked the flow, burst into thunders of applause, which Verman received with happy laughter.

Alas, he delayed not o'er long to display all the egregiousness of a new star, but for a time there was no caprice of his too eccentric to be forgiven. During Penrod's lecture upon the other curios the tattooed wild boy continually stamped his foot, grinned and gesticulated, tapping his tiny chest and pointing to himself as it were to say, "Wait for me; I am the big show." So soon they learn; so soon they learn!

agers, Schofield & Williams restrained their choler and even laughed fulsomely when their principal attraction essayed the role of a comedian in private and capered and squawked in sheer, fatuous vanity.

The first performance of the afternoon rivaled the successes of the morning, and, although Miss Rennsdale was detained at home, thus drying up the single source of cash income developed before lunch, Maurice Levy appeared, escorting Marjorie Jones, and paid coin for two admissions, dropping the money into Sam's hand with a careless—nay, a contemptuous—gesture. At sight of Marjorie, Penrod Schofield flushed under his new mustache (repainted since noon) and lectured as he had, never lectured before. A new grace invested his every gesture, a new sonorousness rang in his voice, a simple and manly pomposity marked his very walk as he passed from curio to curio, and when he fearlessly handled the box of rats and hammered upon it with cool insouciance he beheld, for the first time in his life, a purl of admiration eddying in Marjorie's lovely eye, a certain softening of that eye. And then Verman spake—and Penrod was forgotten. Marjorie's eye rested upon him no more.

"Why, what do you mean? I'll report you to the manager."

Dr. Robert Dormer, Osteopathic Physician, Monday and Friday afternoons, at the Campbell House. Consultation free. 48-t-f

The pastors of Napanee have been requested to deliver sermons on Sunday evening to aid recruiting for the county Battalion, the 146th.

The ashes of the late Foster Ham arrived in Napanee on Thursday and were placed in the Western vault to await interment in the spring.

The remains of the late Mrs. John Smith, a former well-known resident of Napanee, who died this week in California, are expected in Napanee on Saturday.

Do not forget Daughters of the Empire entertainment for second week in February, when something novel and interesting will be offered. Keep dates open, and watch papers for further information.

The annual meeting of the public library was held in the library on Jan. 11th. The annual report showed steady progress during the year. Mr. W. S. Herrington K.C., was re-elected President, and Mr. F. F. Miller, Secretary-Treasurer. Messrs. Root and McLean were added to the board.

The remains of Mrs. Douglas, widow of the late Henry Douglas, a former well known resident of Napanee, were brought to Napanee from Toronto on Monday afternoon. Funeral services were held in St. Mary Magdalene church and interment at Riverside. Two children, Mr. Harry Douglas and Mrs. Dewardney, survive.

Fred Newman was elected mayor of Picton by acclamation. Mr. Newman is an old Addington boy, having been born at Colebrook, in 1870, spent his early boyhood on a farm one mile east of Moscow, and later was agent of the B. of Q. Railway at Larkin, Moscow and Marlbank. Mrs. Robert Ballance and Mrs. James McCormick, Selby, are sisters.

Have you been asked yet the often repeated question: "Are you in khaki?" What has your answer been? The replies to these two questions are forming the basis of what undoubtedly is proving to be the biggest "stampede" that has ever been launched in Napanee. Never before has such a deserving cause been put before the people and never before has the assistance been so cheerfully given. Every person seems to realize the truth of what is on the placards of the recruiting depots: "The Hun is at Our Gates—Enlist Now." The statement that more men must be secured now is one hundred per cent. true and every person in the County should actively co-operate in the securing of 200 men for the 146th Battalion.

17th. Last week Helen was taken ill and on Friday the doctor in attendance pronounced her illness acute appendicitis. She was immediately rushed to the hospital where an operation was performed in an effort to save her life, but to no avail! Helen was a bright and lovable little girl of twelve years, and was a very great favorite among her school companions and many small friends. The heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Sagar in this their hour of great sorrow. The funeral takes place from the family residence this afternoon (Friday) at three o'clock. Services in St. Mary Magdalene church, interment in Riverside vault.

The Late Mr. Van Slyck.

The late Mr. Martin Ten Eyck Van Slyck died 5th of Jan. 1916, at the age of 73 years and 3 months. He died with heart trouble, which had troubled him for over four years at times. The last three months he was confined to his home—suffered a great deal which he bore with great patience. He leaves a wife and three daughters, Mrs. Ida Ketcheson, Toronto, and Elizabeth and Ella at home. One grandson, Martin Ketcheson, of Toronto, one grand-daughter, Edna Van Slyck, living with her deceased grandfather and one great grandson, of Toronto, to mourn the loss of a loving husband, a kind and loving father and grandfather. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Julia Coonley, of Syracuse, and three brothers, Mr. Fr. VanSlyck at Morven, Levi VanSlyck at Dakota and Mr. Adderley VanSlyck of Winnipeg. The late Mr. VanSlyck was born at Kindahook, N.Y.; came to Canada when he was about twelve years of age with his widowed mother, four sisters and four brothers. Helived in Morven 45 years on his farm, and moved to Napanee sixteen years ago. He was a member of the Methodist church since he was 21 years of age. He was noted for his upright dealings with those with whom he came in contact in business, and his loss will be missed by all who knew him.
